Background:
• Niki de Saint Phalle, born Catherine Marie Agnés Fal de Saint Phalle on October 29th, 1930, was a Franco-American artist. She lived in many places such as New York, Paris, Tuscany, and San Diego! She did not go to art school and was not professionally trained, that is why her art works is often known as “outsider art.” Her works are found in many countries, such as Germany, France, the US, Japan, Italy, Sweden, and Taiwan. She is a world-renowned artist with many exhibitions in her lifetime and after her death.

Art in the making:
• Throughout her life Niki worked with many mediums. Paint, stickers, found objects, resins, clay, plaster, for sculptures, as well as ceramic tiles, and stones, and created, paintings, lithographs, assemblages, sculptures, houses, and sculpture gardens.

• Niki started creating "Tirs" or "Shooting paintings", where she placed little plastic bags filled with paint, and small objects on a board covered with plaster (an assemblage). Then she shot the painting so the paint would spill out and cover all the objects. Niki thought it was a good way to let out any anger, or make stance about. She also invited the audience to shoot at the assemblages as a part of her performance and happening.

• What is an Assemblage:
-This is a type of art sculpture where the piece is made by using objects, can be found objects or not and the objects are organized or placed on a larger form to create a type of 3-dimensional collage.

• What is Performance Art?
-Using dramatic performance in combination with visual arts

• In the United States, Niki made a sculpture garden. Located in Escondido, Queen Califia’s Magic Circle is filled with totems covered in mosaics of mirrors, hand-made tiles and stones. This was a gift to the people of California, since she lived in La Jolla from 1993 until her death in 2002. In this sculpture garden, Niki has made many totems that are meant to honor Queen Califia.

• Examples of some of the reoccurring animals in the artists work: Birds, Rhinos, Reptiles (Dragon, Alligator, Snakes) Cats, Horses

The lush background symbolizes former President Obama’s personal story: Jasmine represents his birthplace of Hawaii, African blue lilies are an homage to his Kenyan father, and Chrysanthemums are the official flower of Chicago.

"Lick and Lather" is a sculpture consisting of 14 busts made of chocolate and soap. The artist bit, gnawed, and licked the chocolate busts to alter its features, and bathed with, and washed the soap busts to do the same.

Parcero’s work explores the body and its implicated connections to identity and the natural world. This image shows the portrait image is under script, and images of Meso-American cultures, her portrait encompasses her historical past and uses roots as a form of representation and expression rather than her eyes.
Gordon Bennett was an Australian artist who’s work challenges and deconstructed the concept of Identity, mainly his own. This portrait is a deconstruction of his identity through his heritage and the context of his heritage in his country’s history.

Tracey Emin is part of the Young British Artist period. Her work is always very personal and biographical. For example this appliquéd blanket piece is describes her decision to not have children. And the image below shows her actual bed after a four day long episode of depression. While these works do not represent her figuratively they show a glimpse into her humanity which is an important aspect of a portrait.

PROMPT QUESTION:

- Who knows you better than yourself?

In non-figurative portraiture artists experiment with objects, symbols, and materials to communicate who they are and what they stand for, or a reflection of themselves at one particular moment in time. Taking a look at the works on the left, one may take inspiration from hereditary culture, pop-culture, ancestors, or objects that reflect your day to day life. Take into consideration your own personality and how you chose to share with others on a day to day basis and what you don’t.

- What are some of your pastimes that are enjoyable but also bring you a new view of the world around you?

- How do you choose visual language to communicate with others who you are?
